Culinary Companion

Range cookers have long been the centrepiece of many of our kitchens. These days, no matter what the style of your interior, from minimal to country chic, a range cooker has the power to integrate seamlessly into your design and become a wonderful focal point.

When size matters, it has to be the 1,200mm range cooker from Waterford Appliances. With eight hobs, including two triple wok burners and two full 600mm ovens, one with rotisserie, this cooker allows you to respond to the most demanding of cooking environments. The 1,200mm range cooker offers all of the powerful durability and stunning style that is the hallmark of the Waterford Stanley Appliances collection. Price £2,639/€3,999.

Form and Function

With so many designs on the market to meet the demand for our wide ranging genres of interiors, you can take your pick from the ultra industrial to the seriously traditional. They have always had a tradition of coming in all sorts of colours, but this has morphed from the enamelled plain tones to graphic designs and floral creations over the years. Choose a colour that will complement your kitchen and the room that will be its home. Don't go for anything too overpowering. Size wise, you can go from the smallest at 900mm wide for a smaller kitchen, but still with plenty of functions, to 1,200mm for big families and large gatherings, with their eight burners and four ovens. Function wise, these ovens are primed with several oven cavities and an extensive hob area in one self contained appliance. There are other major decisions to make before you buy, so weigh up these options first in terms of how you want your range to work for you.
